Elegant Kasli cast iron statuette "Ballerina with Flowers", dated 1985.

Stands 5" tall, the plinth is 1 3/4" wide, weighs a little over 14 oz. We have encountered it being called "Gizelle" but its original model, cast in 1951, was entitled "Ballerina with Flowers". The original cast is listed on p.64 of Cast Iron Casting (1920 - 2009) by A. Zak, with the rarity rating of 2 (out of 3, 1 being the most rare). Raised maker's mark is on the bottom.

In excellent outstanding condition. Apart from very minimal deterioration of the black coating ("Dutch soot" as the master casters call it) on the back of the figurine and at the edge of the plinth, there is no damage of any kind. The two screws fastening the statuette to the plinth are perfectly tight.

Kasli was, and remains, one of the finest manufacturers of cast decorative works in Russia and survived from Imperial times through the Soviet Era to today. The Kasli Factory of Architectural and Artistic Casting, as it is now called, is located in the city of Chelyabinsk in the Urals Region of Russian Federation.
