

"Novik Class, The Best Destroyers of the Russian Imperial Fleet", Alexander Chernyshev, 2007, Moscow, Russian text, 222 pp, approximately 8 1/2" x 10 3/8" x 1/2", laminated hardcover.

Books like this are extremely helpful for researchers since Soviet authors do not seem to have spent a lot of time documenting the ships of the Imperial Russian Navy - unless the earlier ships survived to see service in the Red Fleet. Interspersed through the text are an interesting assortment of helpful photos and clear line drawings. Most of the photographs appear to be unique to this publication.
