

5 Year Plan Year screwback badge, large tin commemorative loaded with Soviet symbols: hammer & sickle, Lenin's photo, Lenin's tomb, wheat sheaves, a tractor, etc.

Circa late 1920s - early 1930s.

Very fine to excellent condition. Much of the red enamel has flaked away over the decades, but it does not detract from the badge's impressive "look".

Considering the undoubtedly grey existence of the average Soviet citizen, a gaudy badge like this, made to commemorate either the 1928/1932 or the 1933/1937 Five Year Plan, would have been a very big deal for him to wear!
