

"Jubilee March", subtitled "Dedicated to K Voroshilov", Song and music by Mikhail Ipplitov-Ivanov; joint publication by OGIZ and MUZGIZ Publishing Houses, Moscow, 11 pp, 1936.

9" x 11 7/8". Nice sketch on the cover of a Red Army cavalry band being led by mounted herald trumpeters. Very good to excellent condition.

By the end of the 1930s, Voroshilov was one of the few communist leaders whom Stalin had allowed to become a popular public figure in the USSR, possibly because he never viewed Voroshilov as capable of posing a threat to his leadership.

A good framer could construct a frame for this that would allow the cover to be displayed in a study or a music room.
