

Cut glass creamer or sauce boat, circa late XIX - early XX century.

Stands 4 ½" tall to the tip of the spigot, approx. 3" wide, the base is about 2 ½" wide. The creamer does not have a maker's mark but the Greek-style ornament on top of the "meandering river" pattern running around the sides is strongly reminiscent of the Maltsov Glass Factory artwork.

In very good to excellent condition. Very minor craquelure is visible along the two of the three seams, not reaching through the glass mass to the inside. Not really detractive and not easily noticeable.

Please note that the teaspoon in our photo is for size reference only.
