

Meeting with Tankers in Western Belorussia, an offset color plate, artist signed, circa 1940s-50s.

The image measures approx. 10 ¼" x 6 ½". Total size with the backing frame is 13 ¾" x 10 ½". Printed on thin but fine quality semi-gloss paper and affixed by a thin line of glue along the top edge to a thin cardboard backing inside a printed frame. The title of the painting and name of the artist, M. Monoszon, are printed under the lithograph on the right. The artist's hand-written signature is visible in the bottom right-hand corner of the image. The painting depicts a propagandistic scene of the population of a Western Belorussian town cheerfully greeting Red Army tankers during the Soviet invasion of Poland in 1939.

In outstanding, excellent condition. The image itself is without a single blemish. The backing frame shows a very faint stain towards bottom right, a 1mm-thin line of discoloration along the bottom edge, probably due to light exposure, and minuscule corner bumps and creases. None of the wear is really detractive.
