

Set of 3 matchboxes with Stalin's portraits on the label, circa late 1940s - early 50s.

The boxes are made of wood veneer, measuring approx. 2" x 1½" x ½". There are two uncommon features: a second label on the bottom, and a paper seal with the state emblem of the USSR.

In excellent, superb condition. The boxes are empty but the striking surfaces on the sides do not show any sign of use. All parts are holding strong and tight.

This set should be a welcome addition to a phillumenist's collection or a collection of Soviet lifestyle memorabilia.

Please note that the penny in our photo is for size reference.

Please note: we are offering this set exclusively as a collectible item, not for their original intended use. We are assuming no responsibility if these matchboxes are used as a tool of lighting a fire. We are also compelled to remind that matches must be kept out of reach of children.
