

Porcelain Wall Plate with a Portrait of Stalin, by unknown maker, circa 1930s.

Large format measuring a little over 1 ft. across. Rather massive, weighing close to 3 lbs. Made by an unknown maker. The bottom is marked with initials "ПР" (PR). The plate comes with a hanging rope which appears to be original. Note: a few strands of the rope have unwoven and may be at risk of snapping when under a load.

The plate is in very good to excellent condition, showing small yellowish spots over the glaze. Minor scuffs and scratches become visible upon close inspection but mostly only if the plate is tilted to reflect a bright light. A few tiny bumps under the glaze are present, manufacturing defects. Overall, the plate presents very well at a normal viewing angle.

Please note that the pen in our photo is for size reference.
