

Poster with an offset print of Stalin's portrait and text of his address to students, 1952.

Measures 16 1/2" x 21 3/4", printed on uncoated but sturdy paper. Published by the ART State Publishing House, uncommonly small circulation of only 50,000 copies. This poster is part of a series of posters to decorate the walls of "Young Pioneers' rooms" - special rooms in schools, boarding schools for orphans or juvenile military academies, such as Suvorov Military Schools, dedicated to extracurricular activities of the Young Pioneers, oriented entirely on communist propaganda. The text of Stalin's address to students says "I wish you health and successful studies and social activities. I hope you will complete your school studies well and will become energetic, knowledgeable workers that are necessary for our country."

In excellent condition. The paper is very slightly wrinkled and shows mild storage wear on the verso. The obverse is pristine.

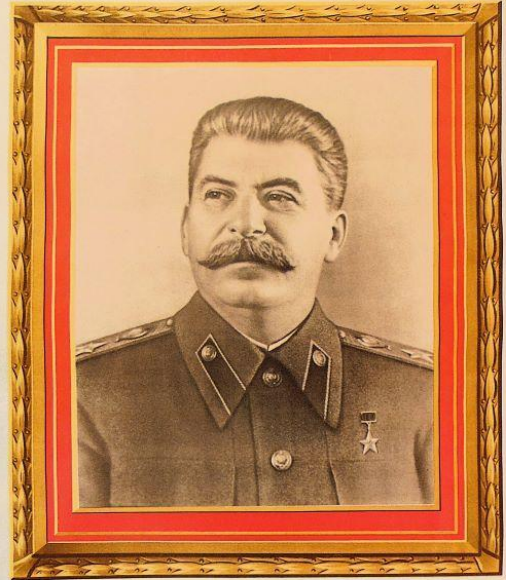

Please note that the pen in our photo is for size reference.
